THE GREAT WAR GOVERNOR

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

GOVERNOR OF INDIANA.

Upon the election of Mr. Lane to the United States Senate in January, 186?, Mr. Morton became Governor. With the exception of Sprague of Rhode Island he was the youngest of the famous circle of War Governors. Morgan of New York was 50; Buckingham of Connecticut, 57; Curtin of Pennsylvania, 44; Andrew of Massachusetts, 43; Dennison of Ohio, 46; Yates of Illinois, 43; Coby of Maine, 50; Blair of Michigan, 43; and Randall of Wisconsin, 42. Mr. Morton had just turned his 37th year. He was beset with difficulties and dangers on every side. In no other Northern State was the opposition to the war so strong and bitter as in Indiana. But the iron will of the Governor carried everything before it. His energy never failed. His genius for organization and his marvellous executive ability crowned his administration with honor. When President Lincoln issued his first call for volunteers, the first answer came from the Governor of Indiana, and on the next day 500 men were in camp in Indianapolis, and the State House was turned into a military bureau. The quota of the State was six regiments, four days after the call was issued the Governor offered to send twelve regiments instead of six, and to raise them within six days. Six days afterward the last of the six regiments had been organized, and agents were shipping improved arms from Canada and the East for the Indiana volunteers. The Governor's terrible earnestness was infectious. Indiana led all the Western States in preparations for the war. When the second call for volunteers came, the additional regiments were already organized, equipped and partially drilled. From the first to the last the Governor of Indiana was the strong arm of the nation in the West.

Gov. Magoffin, while making professions of a desire to hold Kentucky in a neutral position, was at heart a secessionist. He refused to respond to the President's call for volunteers, and artfully laid his plans to induce Indiana, Ohio and other Northern border States, to join him in his pretended neutrality. Gov. Morton rejected his overtures, and from this time he was practically the Governor of two States. The Union men of Kentucky, who were nominally in the ascendancy, depended largely upon him for arms and military stores. Gen. Boyle, in command of the Kentucky frontier, relied wholly upon him. He supplied Admiral Foote, then a Captain commanding the Western Flotilla, with 75,000 pounds of powder, without which the fleet could not have taken Fort Henry. Thus he became known as "Governor of Kentucky and Indiana." In the streets of Frankfort during the quasi-provisional government, which made the rebel Johnson Provisional Governor, while Magoffin was the de facto Executive of the State, a controversy arose between the Kentucky soldiers as to who was the real Governor. One claimed Johnson, the other Magoffin. The dispute grew warmer and warmer, and was about to result in blows, when a brawny Indiana soldier exclaimed, "Hold on, gentlemen, you are both mistaken. Gov. Morton is Governor of Kentucky, as his blue coats, armed with Enfield rifles, will soon show you!" The good-humored way in which it was said set everybody laughing, and the Kentuckians shook hands and proposed three cheers for "Gov. Morton of Kentucky!"

MORTON AND STANTON.

From the beginning of the war Gov. Morton had great influence with the National Administration. This was due to his recognized position as a leader of the Republican party, and also of the remarkable energy, judgment and sagacity which he displayed. He was the trusted friend and counsellor of Lincoln and Stanton. His frequent visits to Washington brought him into close personal contact and constant correspondence with these great men, and they never failed to seek his advice on every question of importance. Mr. Stanton was always his man in an emergency. Once when a Democratic legislature had cut off the supplies, and he had raised $250,000 on his own responsibility, Gov. Morton visited Washington and called on Secretary Chase. "Don't take such responsibilities upon yourself," said the Secretary. "Your State may not sustain you in 1864, and you'll bring bankruptcy upon yourself and your friends. Don't do it, Morton, I implore you. Let the State go. Do your duty and let the rest take care of itself." Mr. Chase was in earnest and the Governor left him. "Where did you go then, Governor?" asked a friend who heard him tell the story several years ago. "To Stanton," was the quick reply. "Stanton heard me through, heard what the President had said, what Chase had advised, and then raising himself up to his full height, remarked with great emphasis, and without prefactory words: But by——Governor, you shall have the money, and I'll read them the law for it, and he walked rapidly to the book-case. He knew his business—he knew how to carry on war—how to fight rebels and deal with their sympathizers. In a short time he came back and read from the laws passed by the extra session of Congress in 1861, an act 'to arm and equip minute-men in States in rebellion or threatened rebellion. This law,' said he, 'was intended to hit the case of Missouri, but it will fit your case as well, for I regard your State threatened with rebellion.' He thereupon appointed me his disbursing officer, as the law required, and gave me a warrant on the Treasury for $250,000."

THE INDIANA REBELLION.

The Governor had to suppress a rebellion in his own State. The aim of the "Knights of the Golden Circle" was to plunge the State into revolution, and precipitate a civil war in its borders. In some counties Union men had been driven from their homes, their houses and barns had been burned, draft-officers had been killed, squads of soldiers sent to arrest deserters had been fired upon, and companies of Rebel sympathizers drilled in open day, with the avowed purpose of resisting the Government authorities. Gov. Morton was the special object of their hatred. His life was repeatedly threatened. Once he was fired at as he was leaving the State House at night, the bullet grazing his head. These outrages became so frequent, and the talk of organized resistance to the draft so alarming, that in June, 1863, the Governor issued a proclamation, reciting the act of Congress to define and punish treasonable conspiracies, and ordering the agitators to submit to the laws. Finally, in 1864, a full exposure was made of the secret organization known as the "Knights of the Golden Circle," or "Sons of Liberty." The membership in the State at that time was about 50,000. Its officers had $200,000 in their hands for the purpose of buying arms. The leaders were in close and constant communication with the Rebels.

An outbreak had been planned to take place in August, 1864. The arsenal at Indianapolis was to be seized, railroad and telegraph lines to be cut, and the Rebel prisoners confined there to be liberated. Gov. Morton was to be captured, and, if necessary, put out of the way. The combined forces of released prisoners and "Sons of Liberty" were to join the Rebel forces, who were to advance to meet them in Kentucky. With such information in his possession, Gov. Morton was prepared to deal this treasonable organization a crushing blow. He caused the arrest of the Grand Commander of the Order in this State, the Deputy-Grand Commander, and four District Commanders—all prominent Democrats. A military commission was organized, and they were put upon their trial for conspiracy and treason. Pending the trial the Grand Commander made his escape from the United States Court building and fled to Canada. One of them turned State's evidence, and disclosed all the secrets of the Order. The Court finally found all four of them guilty as charged, and sentenced three of them to death and one to imprisonment. The death sentence was approved and the day fixed for their execution, when, upon the earnest representations of Gov. Morton and other prominent loyal men, the President commuted their sentences to confinement in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Whig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. BOUTELLE, Editor.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed "Editor of Whig and Courier."

TUESDAY, NOV. 6, 1877.

O, YOU GREAT, NAUGHTY "INFLAMER OF SECTIONAL PREJUDICE!"

Was there ever anything so shocking? What in the world will those "broad-minded Southern statesmen" say? and what will become of Boston's chances for Southern "trade," when the Journal so far forgets itself on the day before election, as to put forward some of the very arguments maintained by the "stalwart" and "implacable" Republicans against the policy of surrendering control of the Government to the Solid South? And to think of all those recent editorials in the Journal demonstrating the patriotism, public spirit, and solicitude for the welfare of the Government, which pervade the South, and, according to its argument, not only justify but prove the wisdom of abandoning the Republican Party of that section! All those editorials "knocked higher than Gilderoy's kite," by blurting right out about the most unpleasant sort of things on the day before election! The Journal has suddenly concluded that Republican votes will be needed and that Republicans do not usually rush to the polls with enthusiasm when there is no special reason for voting. It has decided that they ought to vote and points out what it regards as important reasons for so doing. We think it eminently proper that, even at this late hour, the Boston Journal should publicly explain "Why Republicans Should Vote," and we recognize its reasons as identical with some of those which we urged upon the "stalwart" Republicans of Maine. We are deeply pained, however, to note that the Journal should omit entirely to mention as one of the chief reasons, in its opinion, "Why Republicans Should Vote," the importance of indorsing the Presidential policy of consolidating and encouraging and conciliating, and placating the patriotic gentlemen who are so anxious to secure the payment of rebel war claims, subsidies for Levees, local improvements, Texas-Pacific bonuses, the refunding of the cotton tax, the pensioning of Confederate warriors—those gentlemen who are thus pithily and candidly described in the Journal's language "In short, nearly every Southern member "discloses a firm purpose to get at the "Treasury, in order to get even with the "North that pays the taxes!"

Now, do you know, we have really supposed all along, while reading the Journal's beautiful conciliation compositions, that the end and aim of the policy of our noble President and his magnanimous Cabinet, was to enable the down-trodden and persecuted patriots who "fought for their convictions" and the Confederacy, "to get even with" the brutal, vindictive and tyrannical North. Under the policy they have already succeeded in getting considerably more than "even" in political power, and now they naturally want the balance in cash! And now the Journal suddenly seeks to neutralize all its championship of the great work of "pacification," and to "fire a coldness over de meetin'" by objecting to the "evening up of things" which Southern gentlemen propose to accomplish by helping themselves from the National Treasury. We are "amazed!"

But we are incredulous readers! that we did find the following in the editorial column of Monday's Boston Journal.

WHY REPUBLICANS SHOULD VOTE.—Nearly three-fourths of the Democratic members in the present House come from the South. All of them are eager to repeal the existing laws preventing the payment of the claims of those hostile to the Government during the war for property destroyed. These claims aggregate hundreds of millions. Nearly all of them are eager to secure large appropriations for local improvements, for Mississippi levees, for Texas Pacific railways, all of which would eventually cost tens of millions. All of them favor the repayment of the cotton tax amounting to nearly $70,000,000. Senator Merrimon has introduced a bill which repeals the provision of the statutes restricting pensions to Union soldiers. In short, nearly every Southern member discloses a firm purpose to get at the Treasury in order to get even with the North, which pays the taxes. There will be no danger from these sources so long as the Republicans of the North maintain a strong front in Congress. The danger will, however, be imminent and the attempt to plunder the Government of millions will be successful in the event that the Republican party is so weakened that the desperate Democratic leaders of the West and South will dare to sell their votes to these schemes in order to secure Southern aid for their political advancement. This of itself should be a sufficient incentive to induce every Republican, at all times and under all circumstances, to declare by his vote that the Republican party is a living, energetic organization.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

We trust our readers will bear in mind that the telegraph despatches from South Carolina concerning the trials in progress there against Republican officials, are all sent out by bitter partisans of the Rule Club regime, in fact the same reporters who have systematically sought first to deny and then to justify the bloody outrages committed by the Hampton-Butler chivalry. As a matter of fact, understood by all intelligent people, the programme has been organized for conviction at all hazards, and the constant iteration that there are so many colored men and such a number of Republicans on the jury, is simply what the Tribune styles "soft food for goslings." There are few States in which it would be difficult to hunt up enough individuals calling themselves Republicans to pack a jury, and Hampton and his gang have left no stone unturned in their malignant pursuit of the Republican leaders who "held the fort for Hayes and Wheeler and Chamberlain" last year. The Ellenton trial showed that a South Carolina jury will not convict any ruffian for the persecution or murder of colored citizens; the same spirit would wreak vengeance upon Republicans regardless of truth or justice. The "conciliation" seems to be all on one side in the South Carolina business, and while the champions of "local self-government" are making all the noise they can over charges of peculation against Republican officials, they unblushingly send the infamous and cowardly butcher of Hamburg to demand a seat in the United States Senate as the chosen representative of "the intelligent ruling classes"!

ANOTHER POLICY BUD.

The Boston Advertiser's Washington special announces another bud on the policy olive-branch, showing how the South is ready to be conciliated some more:

The Mississippi Levee matter has taken shape, and its friends have agreed upon a bill to be introduced to-morrow by Representative Young of the Memphis District. It asks for a quarter of a million for surveys, to be made under the direction of army engineers. The work is not to exceed forty-two millions, and government four per cent. gold-bearing bonds are to be issued to that amount. A tonnage tax upon the commerce of the river and a tax of twenty-five cents an acre on all lands benefitted are to provide a sinking fund to meet the principal and interest.

IN THE LIGHT OF CONCILIATION.

[From the New York Times.]

Fortune was kind to Gen. Forrest in permitting him to live until the era of conciliation. Had he died a year ago, the friends of the so-called Union would have recognized his skill and bravery as a soldier, but would have felt compelled to say that he fought in behalf of a bad cause and stained his reputation by an atrocious massacre. Since, however, the day of conciliation has arrived, it is the duty of every one to speak in the highest terms of a gallant Confederate officer, and to assume that the charge of having massacred the Fort Pillow prisoners was a wicked Federal lie. Let us, then, in a spirit of conciliation, comment briefly upon the life and services of this distinguished man.

The great Southern cavalryman took part in the late unfortunate civil war from the purest and holiest of motives. He fought to defend his beloved South from the invading Federal troops. It is quite possible that the latter believed that they were right, but that belief could not alter the character of their acts. This is one of the peculiarities which chiefly distinguished them from the Confederates. The Southern soldiers believed that they were right, and hence they were right. Of the misery they caused by taking up arms they must be held blameless because they fought to sustain their honest convictions. On the other hand, it is impossible to deny that the Federal troops slaughtered thousands of Southern men and laid waste miles of Southern territory. Nothing can alter the fact of this slaughter and devastation, although charity and conciliation require that the soldiers of the so-called Union should be forgiven and their deeds forgotten. There can be no conciliation unless we forget the deeds of the Northern soldiers and celebrate those of their Southern foes, always remembering that the latter must have been right because they thought they were right, and that the former were wrong in spite of their own alleged convictions of duty.

Of Gen. Forrest's skill as a cavalry leader there is no question. In the interests of conciliation we should, however, go further, and concede that, with the possible exception of Stuart, he was the foremost cavalry leader of the century. As to such persons as Sheridan and Kilpatrick, the less that is said about them the better.—The mention of their names tends to excite unpleasant recollections among our Southern brethren, and thus interferes with conciliation. In any event, they must have been greatly inferior to Forrest, from the simple circumstance that they commanded Federal troops. Throughout the war they showed a spirit of hostility to the South, and while they were in the field they made no effort whatever to conciliate the Confederates.

The charge that Gen. Forrest massacred the colored defenders of Fort Pillow is, of course, a malignant partisan falsehood. In the first place, there is no evidence of the truth of the charge. Not a single colored soldier can be found from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Maine to Texas—to use the President's favorite geographical remark—who will testify under oath that he was massacred by Gen. Forrest at Fort Pillow or elsewhere. It is true that several Federal soldiers were killed in battle when Fort Pillow was captured, and it is possible that after the Confederates had entered the fort a few of the simple negroes, dazzled by the splendid appearance of the chivalrous Southern horsemen, may have stumbled and fallen against the sabre, or may even have perished from sheer fright when the piercing gaze of the great cavalryman fell upon them. To suppose that they were literally massacred, is to assume that Gen. Forrest was capable of an atrocious act and no one who cares anything for conciliation could be capable of such an assumption. Moreover, if we concede, for the sake of argument, that the whole story of the Fort Pillow massacre was true, it does not follow that any blame should attach to the Confederates. It is a fundamental principle of the policy of conciliation that because the Confederates thought they were right in rebelling against the so-called Union, they were right. Hence, if Gen. Forrest thought it right to massacre the colored troops, he should be praised rather than blamed for massacring them. It is childish to treat the Southern rebellion as a mere matter of taste, involving no question of right, and at the same time to find fault with mere details of the rebellion. Besides the whole subject of the Fort Pillow massacre should be buried as deep as the dead Federal soldiers, for nothing interferes more with conciliation than to charge those who are to be conciliated with participating in revolting crimes.

Had General Forrest lived a few years longer he might have been made a cabinet officer, a Judge of the Supreme Court, or a foreign Ambassador, and thus been publicly honored as one of the most eminent of American soldiers. Of course, the place to which he was really entitled was Lieutenant-Generalship, now held by the person known as Sheridan; but the latter is unaccountably popular, and his removal, even in the interests of conciliation, might have met with some opposition. Still Forrest's services should undoubtedly have been recognized in some conspicuous way. It is exceedingly unjust to reward such men as Sheridan and Sherman for fighting in a cause which they fancied was right, and to ignore the achievements of a man like Forrest, who fought in a cause that he thought was right. Morality does not belong to acts but to motives. The conscientious soldiers of the South were quite as worthy of honor as the conscientious soldiers of the North. There is really no intrinsic difference between patriotism and treason, between a good cause and a bad one. The conscientious Washington and the presumably conscientious Arnold, each did what was right in his eyes, and both deserved the same respect and admiration. Of course, those bitter partisans who do not consider conciliation as the whole duty of man, may deny these assertions, and while conceding Forrest's skill and bravery, may refuse to honor his memory. It is sad to be compelled to admit that loathsome partisanship so bigoted as to prefer patriotism to treason still exists, and that there are even indications that it is positively growing.

We have hitherto published the last paragraph of the article quoted elsewhere from the N. Y. Times, but the satire which sparkles throughout the whole article is so keen, and its application of the "conciliation" doctrine of the President's Atlanta speech is so direct and striking that we print the article entire for the entertainment of our readers.

We trust the Boston Journal and Advertiser will take notice that the new Administration organ has come out plumply in favor of the "remonetization of silver."—The "policy" has already involved the surrender of political rights, and now it seems inclined to a surrender to the inflationists.

We have received a copy of the Washington Weekly National Union, a folded paper of 32 pages, made up from the daily of that name. The issue contains the first of a series of pictures to form a "National Portrait Gallery," this one giving portrait cuts of the President and Cabinet. In the accompanying biographical sketch of the President, we find the following quotation of his sentiment just prior to the outbreak of the rebellion, which is so emphatically opposed to his present belief in sacrificing everything for "compromise," that we quote the paragraph:

At the approach of this crisis he seems to have been fully awake to the threatening exigencies of the hour. Upon the question of a disruption of the Union he writes: "Disunion and civil war are at hand, and yet I fear disunion and civil war less than COMPROMISE."

This is "November Elections Day," and we hope to give the results substantially in our despatches to-morrow morning. The figures will be more reliable than any estimates or prophecies in advance.

PERISTALTIC LOZENGES. The effects of COSTIVENESS When long continued are pains in the head, dizziness, nausea or sickness at the stomach, general uneasiness in the abdominal region, congestion of the liver, and hence an impeded circulation of the blood, colic, and especially the PILES. The grand proximate cause of Dyspepsia is debility of the stomach. The torpidity of the liver is apparent from the small quantity of bile discharged from that organ, and also by a dull pain on the right side. Under whichever form DYSPEPSIA Appears there is always languor or debility, exertion fatigues, the pulse is weak, the sleep disturbed, the extremities cold, the tongue for the most part furred or covered with a creamy mucus in the morning. No person with a constipated or irregular state of the bowels can have sound health. It is evident, that some gentle laxative, slightly stimulant to the mucous membrane of the intestines, joined with a tonic, that increases the secretions of the liver and gradually strengthening the stomach, must be a … combination and reach the case. That this combination will do, for proof of which we are happy to be able to refer those heretofore disappointed, to the most reliable physicians, who have long used this remedy in their practice, and also to every apothecary by whom the Peristaltic Lozenges are sold. These Lozenges will repair the mischief caused by the excessive use of those "Patent Pills," with which the country has for years been flooded. They are so agreeable to the taste, and convenient in form, that children eat them readily after refusing the usual nauseous remedies. In those symptoms supposed to indicate the presence of Worms, they are a proper remedy. Price 30 and 60 cents. For sale by druggists, or by mail on receipt of price in P. O. stamps or money. *E. S. Messrs Lenapp and Lothrop, of Ill introduced bills for the coinage of a silver dollar

Mr Cox of N Y presented a memorial of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, against the repeal of the bankrupt law Referred

At 1 20 after one hundred and ninety bills had been introduced, Mr Bland called for the regular order, the morning hour having expired, and the Speaker announced the first business in order to be the motion made last Monday by Mr Bland to suspend the rules and pass the bill to authorize free coinage of silver bullion, and to restore its legal tender character

Mr Reagan of Texas, asked Mr. Bland to yield to an amendment

The Speaker stated that under the motion to suspend the rules an amendment was not in order.

The House passed under suspension of the rules Mr Bland's bill for the coinage ... as follows

That there shall be coined at the several mints of the United States silver dollars of the weight of 412½ grains troy standard silver as provided in the act of January ... 1837, on which there shall be the devices and superscriptions provided by said act, such coins together with all silver dollars heretofore coined by the United States of a like weight and fineness, shall be a legal tender at their nominal value for all debts and dues, public and private, except where otherwise provided for by contract and any owner of silver bullion may deposit the same at any United States coinage mint or Assay office, to be coined into ... dollars for his benefit upon the same terms and conditions as gold bullion is deposited for coinage under existing law. Section two repeals inconsistent acts

Mr Ewing moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution making the bill to repeal the third section of the resumption ... special order for to-morrow and from day to day until Tuesday the 13th at three o'clock when the previous question shall be ordered on it and on any amendment then pending, the special order not to interfere with the appropriation bills, but to be extended, if necessary, so as to allow five days for the consideration of the bill All the amendments in the meanwhile are to be in order. On a viva voce vote the Speaker announced that two-thirds appeared to have voted in the affirmative, whereupon the yeas and nays were called for by Page and it was so ordered A vote was taken and the motion agreed to, yeas 113 nays 18

On motion of Mr Wood of New York, the rules were suspended and the following resolutions adopted

That the President be respectfully requested, if not incompatible with the public interests to communicate to the House the correspondence with the Spanish Government and the orders and directions of the Treasury Department to the Collectors of Customs in relation to the recent imposition of a differential duty of fifty cents per ton on vessels entering American ports with such information in reference thereto as he may deem necessary

Resolved That the Secretary of the Treasury be and is hereby requested to furnish the House of Representatives at the earliest practicable moment copies of the contract made with a certain Syndicate of American and foreign bankers for negotiation for the four per cent bonds of the United States together with copies of all other papers relating thereto and also with a statement as to the present position of such negotiation, and whether it remains in force as originally made, without modification or change

Mr Hunton, of Va introduced a bill to remove the political disabilities of Asa Will Passed

Mr Phillips introduced a bill to create Postal Savings Banks.

The Speaker announced that he would be absent to-morrow in Pennsylvania and that Mr Sayler of Ohio, would act as Speaker pro tempore

The House at 2 15 adjourned on motion of Calkins of Ind In respect to the memory of Senator Morton

THE LAST SAD RITES.

FUNERAL OF SENATOR MORTON.

THE ELEGANT FLORAL TRIBUTES

Impressive Ceremonies.

Removal of the Remains from the Court House.

INDIANAPOLIS Nov. 5 From the opening of the Court House doors this afternoon until 10 30, an uninterrupted throng moved through viewing the honored remains of the late Senator Morton. At that hour the pall bearers took a last look when the casket was taken to the hearse and thence to his residence, escorted by the military The rooms of the residence were gracefully draped with flags and with floral tributes As soon as practicable after depositing the remains for the last time in the room so familiar to him in life the house was cleared and the family were left for a brief hour with their dead and their grief Upon opening the doors the time was occupied prior to the removal of the remains to the hearse by the committees from the Cabinet Senate and House of Representatives, distinguished guests and letter carriers in taking a last look, after which the funeral cortege was formed and proceeded to the church of the church were elegant and profuse In the auditorium they were massive, rich and abounding in a dignified simplicity which blending with the black walnut woodwork and evergreens and upholstery did not distract attention from the sad scene itself which was the object of living interest The flags used were all National colors The large space inside the altar rail and between it and the pulpit stand was cloaked with a mass of most beautiful and touching decorations—all gifts from friends at home and abroad

The Floral Decorations

The Musical Selections

At 12 ... o'clock the great organ sounded the opening notes of the Beethoven funeral march On the death of a hero — ... in order the "Farewell" from Jeptha," by Handel, March "Funebre," Chopin ... Lachrymosa' from the requiem Mozart Funeral March Mendelssohn Elergy of Tear Schubert ... funeral March to the Memory of G P Morton, by W H Clark and last ... from the Seventh Symphony by Beethoven — The choir of 100 voices filled the space between the organ and the pulpit stretching around the turn into the gallery above

Floral Decorations sent by Friends

While the farewell from Jeptha was winding out from the organ the letter carriers ... at the side door ... bring the floral tribute which had been sent to the Morton homestead, on two stand At the head of the bier stood a broken pillar of flowers, around the altar rail and on each side of the pulpit stood a floral anchor from President Hayes and the lyre and pillar from the colored citizens of Philadelphia under the pulpit These floral offerings were the most elaborate being made of tuberoses chrysanthemums, camelias carnations and the rarest roses

Arrival at the Church.

At one o'clock the remains were brought into the church preceded by the officiating clergymen and followed by the pall bearers Hon E B Martindale Hon J N Tyner, Assistant Postmaster General Dr W C Thompson ex Gov Conrad Baker Gen James A Ekin, Assistant Quartermaster General, Hon John ... Hon H Taylor Hon A G Porter followed by the family and relatives, then came Senators Davis, Burnside Bayard McDonald Cameron of Pa Booth, and Representatives Banks Cobb, Townsend Birchard, Davidson and Hanna Then followed the Secretary of War, Secretary of the Navy, Attorney General and Richard Hayes ex Governor Hendricks, Gov Williams Hon B H Bristow, Gen Jno. M Harlan Gov Young of Ohio, Governor Cullom of Ill Col Ingersoll, Murat Halstead, Mayor Moore, Theodore Cook, Judge Cox of Cincinnati and many other distinguished visitors then came the Indiana State officers, the Mayor and City Council of this city in the church were as follows:

The Impressive Services

At 1 10 the choir sang the anthem Cast thy burden upon the Lord and He shall sustain', then at 1 20 Rev Myron W Reed read from the Scriptures first the 90th Psalm and then the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes; at 1 35 prayer by Rev Dr Henry Day, at 1 30 anthem "My faith looks up to Thee," at 1 40 Sermon by Rev Jas Bradford Cleaver, from 2d Samuel, 2d chapter part of the 7th verse, "Saul is dead", at 2 25. anthem, "Am I only born to die", at 2 30, Eulogy by Rev. Dr. J Bayless

WASHINGTON.

Tokens of Respect

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 As Morton's funeral takes place to-day, all the Government departments and District offices are closed, flags half masted and bells tolling in honor of the illustrious dead

Buckner's Constitutional Amendment

A joint resolution was introduced in the House to-day by Buckner, of Missouri, which proposes the adoption of a new constitutional amendment, as follows

Article 17 All that part of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that "the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any State on account of race or color, or previous condition" shall only apply or extend to comprehend or include persons who were citizens of the United States, on the 30th of March, 1870 when said amendment was adopted, and their issue

The purpose of the above is understood to be to prevent the Chinese or their descendants in the country from becoming voters

LEE Mr Editor—The Fall Term of Lee Normal Academy will close next Friday by a grand entertainment given by the students The school has been a success, Mr Douglass, the Principal, proving himself an able and efficient teacher The scholars on their part conducted themselves with scholarly deportment and they intend to give a grand entertainment, consisting of music, dialogues, tableaux and the interesting play, "Down by the Sea" which will be the principal play of the evening The students have taken great pains to make it a success and we hope that everything may pass off as pleasantly as the school itself reflecting credit on teacher and scholar C

G A R ASSEMBLY Owing to the very unfavorable weather last evening the first assembly in the G A R Course was not very largely attended but although small in numbers the party was a very pleasant one and all seemed to enjoy the occasion The music by McQuown's orchestra was fine and showed that they have been doing some hard work in preparing for these assemblies At intermission, which was announced by the bugle sounding the "Dinner Call" Messrs Jaques & Church of the Boston bakery were down in the Council room ready to provide all who wished with refreshments After intermission the dancing was resumed and continued until a late hour The committee of arrangements had the hall floor in good condition for dancing, and we hope that they will be favored with a pleasant evening for their next assembly when they will undoubtedly be greeted with a large party

RATHER MIXED Yesterday afternoon the police were notified that there was a man down by the school house on the Hampden road that needed their attention Two of the officers immediately started down to the school house where they found a fellow ... asleep in his carriage the horse gone and the harness piled in the carriage on top of the man Some men near by said that the fellow first undertook to drive down the railroad but as his horse did not work well on the sleeper he came up on to the Hampden road and drove down behind the school house where he upset his carriage and then went to sleep The school boys unharnessed the horse righted the carriage and placed the fellow in it and then one of them started off for a ride on horse back The top of the buggy was somewhat ... The officers hitched the fellow's team in in the carriage and hailing a truck team they made it fast to the cart and started for the station house When they reached the Bangor House they found the boy with the horse which they tied behind the buggy and when coming down Main street with a crowd of boys following them they presented the appearance of a caravan entering the city The fellow was locked up in the station house and last night after he came to himself he said that his name was James Rowe and that he was from Newburgh

Mary E. Cochran vs City of Bangor Plaintiff claims that in January last while passing over the sidewalk on State street, at a time when it was covered with ice she fell, sprained her ancle, cut her knee and hurt her side and shoulder She claims she was walking with the use of ordinary care, and that no fault of hers contributed to the alleged injury. Plaintiff claims the walk was defective in that there was a ridge of ice in the centre some eight or ten inches high, and that she slipped upon it. She brings her action to recover $500 as damages for the injuries alleged to have been sustained Defendants set up that there was no defect in the walk, that the ridge of ice was not such a defect as the city would be liable for, that the walk was reasonably safe and convenient, that the plaintiff was not in the exercise of proper care, in that she did not walk on either side of the walk where there was a good path Defendants also objected to the notice to the city Verdict for plaintiff for $250

THE FUTURE JERSEY COW.

In breeds of cattle grow either better or poorer, according to the treatment they receive by breeders, than it becomes a reasonable question to ask, What will be the character of the future Jersey cow in this country? We believe the Jersey may be improved for general purposes by an admixture of other blood as will give a larger size, and a little more hardy constitution. That we are not alone in this opinion, may be seen by the following letter of a Western correspondent of the Live Stock Journal:

It seems to me a safe prediction, that the Jersey cow—perhaps I should say the Channel Island cow—will become more popular, and, if possible, more fashionable. She has made great progress in these directions in the past few years. It is not very long since that she was looked upon as almost purely a fancy animal, and had but little general recognition in that line even. Now, however, the breed is in high repute with many practical men—men who keep cows with the view of making money from their products rather than by their sale for breeding purposes. In this country the number of pure bred Jerseys is much greater than that of any other breed of cattle the inost [illegible] [illegible]

THE INTERNATIONAL WHEAT SUPPLY.

In the last year of this period, 1872, 88,000,000 bushels were imported. One hundred million bushels ... in excess of [illegible]

In examining the sources of this supply, ... Russia has declined to 16, and other countries have furnished but 30 instead of 19 per cent. Thus is this country advancing to supremacy in the wheat as in the cotton supply.—Dep. of Agriculture Rep.

TREATMENT OF COWS.—A writer who says that one good cow gives all the milk that is used by a family of eight persons, and from which cow was made 260 pounds of butter last year, gives the following as his treatment: "If you desire to get a large yield of rich milk, give your cow every day water slightly warm, slightly salted, in which bran has been stirred at the rate of one quart to two gallons of water. You will find if you have not tried this daily practice, that your cow will give twenty-five per cent. more milk immediately under the effects of it, and she will become so attached to the diet as to refuse to drink clear water unless very thirsty, but this mess she will drink most any time, and ask for more.

A Minnesota wheat crop of this year is estimated at no less than 40,000,000 bushels, notwithstanding the ravages of grasshoppers.

Hartwell C. Cushman, of Oxford, Me., secured on one stalk of King Philip corn, planted in field as usual, three ears, viz.: One, eight-rowed, twelve inches long, containing 472 kernels; one, eight-rowed, 11½ inches long, 140 kernels; one, twelve-rowed, nine inches long, 510 kernels—making in all 1128 kernels.

Ezra Keen of the Lino district, Hartford, Me., raised two hundred and fifty-nine bushels of sound ears of corn, from two acres of ploughed land, it being the most of any one in the district on two acres, if not in the town or county. Henry A. Bickrell, of the same district, raised on ten square rods of old ground, 103 bushels of Norbiton's Giant Mangold Wurtzel beets. Rows eighteen inches apart, drills made for the seed by moving a wheelbarrow over the ground, dressing harrowed in.

A NICE WAY TO BAKE APPLES.—First get good tart apples, then pare, quarter and core, put in a dish (earthen or galvanized iron is best), pour hot water in to come up most half way, put in a hot oven and bake till soft, but not into a pumice, set on the stove and sprinkle a half cup of sugar over, and let simmer and boil from ten to fifteen minutes, according to the amount of water in dish. It should be a rich, thick jelly juice from of the dish. Serve either warm or cold, with cream and sugar if desirable.

COCOANUT CAKE.—One and one-half cups of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of milk, two cups of flour, three eggs, one teaspoonful of tartar, and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Mix sugar enough with the whites of the eggs to sweeten, and spread it on the cake when cool, then sprinkle with the grated cocoanut. This makes four cakes as for jelly.

CIDER PUDDING.—One pint of cider; one-half pint of molasses, one teaspoonful each of ground cloves and cinnamon, one teaspoonful of soda, four cups of chopped raisins, one-half cup of suet and butter, a pinch of salt, and flour enough to make a stiff batter. Boil two hours and serve with hot or cold sauce, or both, according to taste. Milk substituted for cider will make an excellent pudding.

MIXED COCOANUT CAKE.—One coffee cup of butter, four coffee cups of flour, two coffee cups of sugar, one coffee cup of milk, six eggs, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, one teaspoonful of soda, one grated cocoanut, mixed.
